

PENDING YEARS TO TRIAL

Four years ago suits that originated in the court of the week before last, unless new circumstances cause a further delay, they are now brought to trial.

The suits were brought to trial on July 5, 1915, when the court found in favor of the plaintiff, Mrs. C. S. Seiditz, E. B. Seiditz, Mary Dimick and Mrs. H. Deters, named as members of the corporation which operated the amusement park. Plaintiff's damages of $25,000, $10,000 and $1,000 each, were awarded. All were caught in the falling tower and the suits were based on the negligence of the corporation in leaving the safety of the tower money it collected at the gate to witness attractions of the tower.

Seiditz represents the deceased. His duties as a member of the constitutional convention prevented the cases from coming to trial.

Organized labor in the tri-city plans on forming a means of counteracting as much as possible the alleged nation-wide spread of activities on the part of employers to cut wages and destroy the labor movement.

Officials of the Tri-City Federation of Labor have called a meeting of presidents and secretaries of all labor unions affiliated with the central group to be held at the Rock Island Industrial hall next Tuesday evening.

The avowed purpose of the meeting is to arrange plans to bring to the individual union man facts in the campaign declared to have been started by employers to destroy the unions and to beat down wages.

Claims are being put forward that various systems are being used by employers in the alleged ever increasing tide to defeat labor organizations and drive wages down.

Layoffs and then the reemployment of the same men, but at greatly reduced wages, is claimed to be a system that is becoming an open practice.

I read recently in your editorial columns an article at length suggesting that we all take time to write out the word Christmas, and not write it Xmas. I agree with you, and to be sure you are sincere I would suggest that you change the large notice appearing on the first page of The Argus every day reading, "—More Shopping Days Before Xmas," etc.
